INFORMATION ABOUT ACCESSIBILITY

Moers has a heart for people with disabilities. A range of our tourist offerings and destinations – such as the recommended city tours or the castle – are designed to be completely or partly handicap accessible.

If you have any questions, please contact the addresses on pages 14 –15. You will also find additional information about accessibility in our Guide for people with disabilities (in German).

The Romans, the Orange Order, the Spaniards, the French and the Prussians were here. And even the labour-filled era of the coal industry has left its traces. Moers has preserved this all as part of its history– and is newly revitalized. A wonderful result: a modern city with a lot of flair!

FROM OLD TO NEW – MOERS STANDS OUT discover & experience more

far top: Luise Henriette, top: Altmarkt

Enchanted corners, winding alleys and old buildings: The old town is well-known far beyond the city limits. The best way to experience its charm is on foot. Our tour begins at the Kastell (1), the town centre’s largest square. Here you will find the Kreisständehaus (2), a Renaissance building dating back to 1898. Passing the Castle (3) on the left, we make our way to St. Josef catholic church (4) built in 1871. The Kindergarten (5) on the other side was built in 1778. Before a new church was built, this was in fact the first Catholic church in Moers.

We now walk back to the Schlosspark (6) (castle park), with its old and partly exotic trees and the historic ramparts. Designed in 1836 by horticultural director Maximilian Weyhe in an English style, it is now considered to be one of the region’s most beautiful landscape gardens – and part of the Strasse der Gartenkunst (Road of Garden Art). We leave the palace gardens north-east and arrive at Meerstrasse, where we turn left again. Here “Im Rosenthal”, the former New Town (7) begins. On the right hand side at the end of the street is a group of houses from the Orange Order period (8). The stepped gables of Number 61/63 originated in 1640. Number 22/24 on neighbouring Fieselstrasse is just as old. At the “Pumpeneck” (9), we continue to the right into Neustrasse, which opens onto Neumarkt (10) (new market) with the statue of Friedrich I. On the right is the Peschkenhaus (11), the city’s oldest town house. Built at the end of the 15th century, it later became a town mansion. Today it is a gallery for contemporary art displays showing rewarding, temporary exhibitions of national importance.

The Evangelische Stadtkirche (12) (Protestant parish church) opposite dates back to the 15th/16th century.

Back in the pedestrian zone, Steinstrasse leads further into the old town. On the left, town houses from the 17th/18th century surround the Altmarkt (13) (old market) with the Prussian monument. Here you will find many inviting pubs and restaurants – this is where people meet up in Moers. If you're looking to take a break you can't go wrong here. Then we continue past the pharmacies to Kirchstrasse. "Rösgen" house no. 38 was built in 1677. Today people can take delight in the classical plaster façade.

Picturesque all over: from the Kreisständehaus to the catholic church, to the Gänsebrunnen (above), images of Steinstrasse (below)

The Peschkenhaus at Neumarkt

At the turn-off to Friedrichstrasse (14) is the Gänsebrunnen (15) (goose fountain). The houses here and on Pfefferstrasse were lovingly reconstructed or rebuilt in line with urban redevelopment. On the way back through Burgstrasse to Kastell we again cross Haagstrasse. House number 7 in Dutch Baroque style is the present day County Court (16) – buildings number 24 and 26 (17) are also worth seeing.

By the way: The leaflet "Altstadt-Bummel" ("Old town rambles") also offers this tour in "pocket size" (in German).

Kaleidoscope of past powers

Rulers and influences from all corners of the globe have shaped the town's history, the mentality of its population and the townscape. Wherever you look you will see the roots. The key cornerstones of town history are:

- 2.500 BC Finds from the Neolithic period
- 500 BC First "official" evidence of settlers
- 12/11 BC Roman settlement Asciburgium established (the Asberg district owes its name to the fortification.)
- 1200–1700 Period of prosperity of the Counts of Moers
In 1300 Habsburg King Albrecht I. grants Moers town rights.
- 1597 The "guest performance" of the Spanish ends.
- 1601 Maurice of Nassau, Prince of the Orange Order reflowerishes Moers.
- 1702 The county becomes part of Brandenburg-Prussia through inheritance. Shortly thereafter Moers becomes a principality. A brief spell with the French follows.
- 1857 The small country town becomes county seat Moers.
- 1904 Coal mining begins. Rheinpreussen coal mine is sunk.
- 1922 The Pattberg shaft system is created. The population skyrockets; social and working structures change drastically.
- 1975 Moers becomes part of Wesel county.
- 1990/93 Mining is history. New business parks and the arrival of future-oriented industries speed up structural change.
- 2000 Moers celebrates its 700th anniversary.
- today Moers is a lively centre of the Lower Rhine with economic and cultural diversity.

Additional tips to experience more

✓ Would you like a tour of the town? The special flyer "Stadtführungen" (in German) has many tips such as the family tour, Felke tour, Roman tour, cultural history tour, mining tour, etc.

✓ Interested in religious history? Visit the Turnmuseum in one of Germany's oldest churches – the Repelen village church. On a guided tour up to the belfry you will learn interesting facts about church life during medieval times and earlier.

✓ ...and another tip to pursue: Moers is part of the renowned 2,500 km long Orange Order Route. One of many highlights: our castle

The Castle – Reflection of the past

At the entrance we are received by Orange Order Princess Luise Henriette. The castle itself is essentially one of the few preserved ringfort complexes of the High Middle Ages. The original tower castle dating to around 1200 is the oldest building and landmark of Moers. Living history can also be found in the inside: The Grafschafter Museum provides visitors with lots of insight into the history of the castle and county. The Schlosstheater is a modern contrast. The smallest municipal theatre in Germany is nationally recognised for its performances.

Revitalisation in Moers? What once was, still is!

Located in the Repelen district the more than 100 year old Jungbornpark is popular among those seeking rest and recreation. Around 1900, this once independent municipality became recognised worldwide as a health resort, founded and operated by Emanuel Felke with his naturopathy procedures similar to those of Kneipp. This tradition has been revived: A former Felke hut was built from plans derived from the original huts to serve as a museum. The light-air hut, the clay minigs, the bare-foot path and other natural healing elements can be toured and tried out.

Living monuments of the mining industry

The Meerbecker mining town is a special part of the urban developmental history of Moers. After careful restoration true to the original, it is nowadays one of the most beautiful and best preserved colonies of its type in Germany. Old witnesses of that time are also shining with new splendour in other areas. The centrepiece of the Industrial monument of Rheinpreussen coal mine is Shaft IV. The restored building and the characteristic A-frame shaft tower are unique centerpieces of this monument to labour.

To shopping fans and night owls Moers is the heart of the Lower Rhine. The mix of an appealing range of goods, historic setting, and inviting pubs and restaurants makes us unique. Where else in the region is it picturesque yet lively?

The people of Moers like to celebrate – and so the town offers visitors entertainment throughout the year: Music from classic to jazz, theatre from serious to grotesque, and much more, from reflective to tangible. Be inspired!

Shopping paradise Moers

Moers is a unique shopping destination in the region. Not only because of the size but also the mix of individual shops, attractive fashion boutiques and special flair. Here you can stroll outdoors instead of jostling at the shopping centre – particularly in the old town, with its main artery “Steinstrasse” running through the town centre. At its end at Neumarkt is the largest and best-stocked fashion retailer in the region to draw crowds, the family business Braun. But even down winding alleys of the old town and at the Kastell there is plenty to discover. Here you can find additional shops which make Moers special: owner-operated shops with new and second-hand designer clothing, distinct shoe fashion, unusual jewellery design, whiskey specialties and much more. The attractive offerings attract scores of visitors from the surrounding area and even cities nearby.

Day and Night

Lively yet relaxed: In the numerous good pubs, restaurants and cafés you can restore your energy, dine or meet up after a stroll. Whether it's Altmarkt, Hanns Dieter Hüsch-Platz, the Kastell in the center of Moers – or a place in the suburbs: The old town may not be the longest bar in the world, but the prettiest. Even the clubs and discos offer music for everyone. The PM is also a special as a place to be: The area's largest discotheque is located in the restored Rheinpreussen coal mine!

takes place in the theme park in autumn. Balloonists from all over Europe meet for the large Moerser Ballonfest. The mystical nightglow is simply breathtaking.

The Parkfest is also full of atmosphere. Every other year the Moers Schlosspark is immersed in a colourful sea of lights at night. The music programme with big names in entertainment is an event for the entire family.

General crowd pullers also are the Moerser Kirmes (funfair) on the first weekend in September, the city festivals in spring “Moerser Frühling” and autumn “Moerser Herbst”, the popular Moers flea markets and the tranquil Christmas market.

For an overview of events see page 15.

Additional tips to experience more

✓ You would like to experience more “Good things from the Lower Rhine”? This local farmers' action alliance is a union for direct and regional marketing and, above all, a seal of quality.

✓ Just thinking about the Moers flea market makes the heart of every bargain hunter in the Lower Rhine beat a little bit faster! The event leaves the historical old town bursting at its seams on four Sundays during the year. Supply and demand are enormous. No surprise. Only private traders sell here!

✓ The weekly markets are a piece of Moers' lifestyle. Merchants and farmers offer the best products for the kitchen and cellar, house and garden at district markets and every Tuesday and Friday morning in the town centre.

✓ Escargot is a gourmet experience of a different kind. This is the wrong region? False! Enjoy them at their best, scalloped, after a visit to the Graftschafter Weinbergsschneckenzucht, the only vineyard snail farm far and wide.

Real highlights

The best known event drawing thousands of visitors to Moers' Schlosspark every year is the Moers Festival during Pentecost. What began almost 40 years ago as a free jazz festival is today one of the country's most important jazz events. Hear jazz, soul, funk, as well as the entire range of experimental world music. The International Comedy Arts Festival presents itself with humour, from subtle to snappy. The summit of global humour is Germany's oldest event for the art of humour – and one of the best known. In summer the Moers Kastellplatz turns into a huge stage for visual comedy, musical and stand-up comedy, street theatre, performance and artistry. A highlight in the truest sense of the word

Additional tips to experience more

✓ If you're from Moers and not mad, chances are you probably are! Fools celebrating carnival should not miss the “wingless dragon” crawling through town on Nelkensamstag (“Carnation Saturday” – the Saturday directly preceding Shrove Tuesday)

✓ Partygoers look forward to the annual ENNI Night of the Bands. In many pubs people party till morning. The recipe for success: Sounds for every music taste!

✓ Live Music and Fringe can also regularly be enjoyed in Moers aside from the Moers Festival and International Comedy Arts Festival. The venues are Bollwerk 107, the Rheinkamp arts centre and many other stages.

✓ The varied programme of the restored Martinstift promises a wealth of diversity. The site of the music school is a permanent address for town concerts – and venue for the internationally renowned Klavierfestival Ruhr! (Ruhr piano festival).

✓ The Freefall Festival, awarded the Deutscher Bürgerpreis (German Citizen Award) in 2012, has become an established attraction on the Moers event calendar. Themed “umsonst & draußen” (“free & outdoors”) volunteer organisers offer young and up-coming bands an ideal stage to present themselves to the public.

If you thought the Lower Rhine area is flat as a pancake, you'd be mistaken! In addition to romantic poplar avenues, coppiced willows and fen, Moers even offers hills – not real ones, but nevertheless ones of special recreational value.

The flat landscape, pierced by high mountain ranges, makes the Lower Rhine the ideal destination for sports enthusiasts – particularly cyclists. And many other sports people also have fun ranging “from classical to trendy”.

Highlights of the Lower Rhine

Like beautiful views? Anyone who conquers the Geleucht (mining lamp) – a 28 metre high tower with a viewing platform, after a “Gipfelsturm” (climb to the summit) of the Rheinpreussen spoil tip – can look far into the Ruhr region and deep in the Lower Rhine. But not only the impressive panorama view is worthwhile. The landmark is also a cultural highlight and a national tribute to the mining tradition. Furthermore it's a real eye-catcher by day – and impressively lit at night. Artist Otto Piene designed the construction as a historic mining lamp, especially for this spoil tip. The two – spoil tip and mining lamp combined – are part of the Route of Industrial Culture. And they are the largest piece of montane art in the world.

Donken are the usually sandy ridges near shore which rise above the surrounding fen. Shallow, reedy wetland habitats, streams, coppiced willows, heather-covered sands and long poplar avenues are the varied result of this geological rarity in the predominantly agricultural surroundings.

Lowlands shaped by water

Everybody knows “Father Rhine”. However, the Schwafheimer Meer, an old creek south of Moers, would be new to many visitors. The typical Lower Rhine fen is host to a unique animal and plant world. A tranquil natural trail impressively explains the special features of the habitat “Hochflutrinne” (high tide channel).

The characteristic Kendel and Donken landscape is unique to the Lower Rhine. Kendel are streams and little rivers.

Additional tips to experience more

Let's start at the Schlosspark: The culture island is really part of the old city fortification in the area of the “Nepix Kull”. Signs in the area point the way.

During a winter visit you can experience pure nature in the form of thousands of Arctic geese. If you don't want to miss this superlative spectacle of nature contact NABU – who offer excursions with minimal disturbance to the animals.

Pushbike or your own two feet?

Whether pursuing exhausting mountain-biking over the spoil tips or easy cycling along flat routes – more than 2,000 kilometres of perfectly signposted cycle paths and routes, such as the Niederrhein-Route, the Rheinradweg, the Baumkreisroute or the Grafschafter Rad- und Wanderweg for example, form Europe's densest network of cycle paths.

The central location and the good rail connection make Moers the perfect quarter for day trips and multi-day trips. Hikers will also get their money's worth. Sign-posted hiking paths and nature trails offer relaxation and interesting insights into flora and fauna. The landscape of the Lower Rhine hiking trail is particularly attractive. Even Europe's top pilgrimage route, the Road to Santiago, leads directly past Moers castle. Did you know?

Faster people are in good hands with Nordic walking and jogging. Beautiful paths “from short to long” can be found at the Uettelsheim and Schwafheim lakes, at the castle park and theme park, and at the spoil tips.

Many types of water

You're looking for even more variety? Whether flowing or frozen – water is key in Moers. The historical natural outdoor pool Bettenkamper Meer invites with the charm of the 1920s. The Solimare waterpark, with a 10 m diving platform, sports pool, non-swimmer pool and baby pool, offers modern bathing fun. And for those who enjoy the ice there's the indoor ice rink with international dimension to offer room for beginners and experienced skaters alike.

In Moers you can hire the perfect alternative to your own bike, the equally high-quality and stylish NiederrheinRad.

Additional tips to experience more

Friends of noble lawn sports will take delight in the first class golfing opportunities in the nearby surrounding area. There's a total of three 18-hole and 14 other courses in the Lower Rhine. You can't get more!

Running fans take note! Whether multi-stage or relay run, half marathon or marathon, the wir4-Städtelauf has something for everyone: walkers, amateur runners or club starters will find the right distance for them on October 3rd (German Unification Day).

Riders will also find everything their heart desires. Various charming riding areas and numerous modern stables are waiting for you!

Cycling is twice as fun when done with like-minded. More than 70 stations between Rhine and Maas participate in the Niederrheinischer Radwandertag (Lower Rhine cycling-hiking day) always the first Sunday in July. It is a matter of honour for Moers to be one of the organisers.

Biking, swimming, ball games,... – already guaranteeing holiday fun for many kids. But that's not all that Moers has to offer for families. For you we have even more up our sleeves!

Visiting Moers for a day or the weekend? How nice! But if you're feeling spoilt for choice, you'll be happy for a few tips, such as how to arrange a brief highlights tour. Perhaps:

Sunshine and bad weather tips

A special tip is the Grafschafter Musenhof directly near the castle. This medieval play and education city is a child-oriented museum-pedagogical adventure location of the Grafschafter Museum with pottery, house and bakery, stable, shop and city tower with dungeon. The numerous teaching activities include supervision during special hours for parents who would like to do some relaxed shopping.

More than 130 well maintained playgrounds and kick-about areas also guarantee lots of fun in Moers. Here you will notice that kids were consulted in planning. The offers range from a walk-in castle or adventure slides to mud puddles for the little ones – and from climbing garden or street ball and roller hockey areas to the bike and skater track for teenagers.

The small petting zoo in the theme park promises outdoor fun for little ones. Horses, goats, chickens, rabbits and many other farm animals are looking forward to your visit. Entertainment is also offered in winter, when it snows and freezes: That's when the Rodelberg invites you to sledging at the theme park and the giant indoor ice rink invites you to go ice skating. Raining? A fine alternative is a visit to the

At the Grafschafter Musenhof (left) kids can playfully learn about the medieval times. The playground right next to it invites even the youngest to play (right).

Grafschafter museum at the Moers castle. Here "Countess Walburgis" welcomes visitors big and small and guides them (as a projection) through the castle. Or explore the collection of dolls. Interesting is Shaft IV of the Rheinpreussen mine. The machine equipment demonstrates the hard labour of coal mining in the olden days hands on.

"City Moers" – a colourful day in the city

Rail travel is fun. If you choose this mode of transport, you'll also discover the historic station. We also recommend it to those arriving by car, who will find opportunities to park there and around the old town. Now it's merely a stone's throw to the pedestrian zone. Welcome to the heart of Moers! The old town with its picturesque flair welcomes you. Be it Hauptmeile, Altmarkt or side alleys – history meets modern times all around. For in addition to historic surroundings, shops are calling: On Steinstrasse it's mainly brand name stores and fashion chains, down side streets are the specialist stores. At Neumarkt, fashionistas will find the largest fashion boutique in the Lower Rhine area. For this, if no other reason, Moers is known as a shopping paradise!

After so many impressions a refreshment is surely in order. End your day at one of the pubs on the Altmarkt, the Hanns Dieter Hüsich-Platz or at the Kastell.

City by bike – The "Around Moers" tour You've got another day? Then we suggest the Bergmannstour (miner's tour) by bicycle – for instance by "NiederrheinRad" for hire at the station with a quick reservation by internet or telephone. After a short visit to the old town, it continues towards Meerbeck, where you can find a restored coal miners' settlement true to the original.

By the way, it is prettiest in May, when the cherries blossom. Now head north to the next destination, the Rheinpreussen spoil tip. The view is well worth it! And the walk-through mining lamp, the Geleucht, turns the spoil tip into a total work of art. From here the diversified route leads past the Uttelsheim Lake to the old Rheinpreussen mine. Especially worth seeing are the shaft tower and the winding engine house with its true to the original furnishings and collection. From there you'll soon return to the station.

Many coppiced willows (bottom) can be found on tours around Moers. Fashionistas gather on Steinstrasse (right). Cycling – national sport of the people from the Lower Rhine (bottom right)

You still have some time left and are interested in other tours? No problem – there are four other bicycle circuits! Whether you choose the "Natur pur" (Simply nature) route with its stations Schwafheimer Meer or the old water mill, or prefer to cycle the "Wasser- und Schlosstour" (Water and castle tour), or spend time on "Aktiv & gesund" (Active and healthy) or take the "Spurensuche" (On the trail), is entirely up to you. All tour flyers (in German) are available at the city information desk.

Additional tips to experience more
